

We must open up our eyes and seize

"They have chosen to do nothing. Nothing that has a realistic chance" and rend the veil of smoke which man calls order

"as elderly billionaires seek to grab ever more of the life"

pollution is a necessary result of the inability of man

"that slips from them, they create a death cult"

to reform and transform waste

"They left saying 'how about never?'"

all must not be art, some art we must disintegrate lines not in quotes from Patti Smith, lyrics to "The 25th Floor", 1978

From The Getty Center: A Panoramic Postcard Book, published by Chronicle Books. #20 lines in quotes from George Monbiot, The Guardian, 11/18/22, "Our leaders had a fatal chance"