

Poem 1

Evening Sun grows cold
as it disappears beneath the Berkshires.
The coming darkness commands a question,
If the fondness in our hearts
does not grow,
will it wither, unfulfilled?